DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chi et al. (US Patent Application Publication No. 2004/0089864) in view of Soules (US Patent No. 6,252,254).

Regarding claim 1, Chi et al. disclose a white light source, comprising:

An insulating substrate 10 (fig.1);

A green LED and a blue LED on substrate ([0028] and [0029]);

Mixed with red and yellow dual color light ([0028] and [0029]).

Chi et al do not show red and yellow are phosphorescent glue.

However, Soules et al. show red and yellow phosphor layers can be applied to LED (column 5, line 64 and column 6, line 6).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to replace the red-yellow dual colored light of Chi with the red and yellow phosphors of Soules, in order to provide a desired white light (column 6, line 33).

Regarding claims 2 - 4, Chi and Soules disclose the claimed invention of claim 1 except for the red phosphorescent glue deposited above (cited in claim 2) or below (cited in claim 3) or mixed (cited in claim 4) with yellow phosphorescent glue.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to arrange the red and yellow as claimed invention, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art.
